NELSON MANDELA CENTRE OF MEMORY

Houghton

The Nelson Mandela Foundation, established in 1999 and located in Houghton, Johannesburg, is a non-profit organisation that encapsulates the memory and enduring influence of its eponymous founder, Nelson Mandela. The Nelson Mandela Centre of Memory is central to its mission, which houses an extensive archive of Mandela's life, meticulously preserved and digitised for global accessibility. The Foundation engages in dialogue and advocacy, promoting a just society honouring diversity and historical narratives. Initiatives like International Mandela Day foster change and address contemporary societal issues. The Foundation's commitment to societal transformation is visually narrated through its photographic documentation, educational exhibitions, and a rich repository of resources, affirming its role as a dynamic memorial and a knowledge centre dedicated to Mandela's legacy.

Conversations for Action - Conversations for Change

The iMadiba Project is a global interactive, participative art project creating conversations for change through art installations, or micro museums, based on the actual dimensions of the Robben Island cell where the late president spent most of his 27 years of incarceration.

I was one of those who formed MK, and my instructions from the NEC of the ANC was to attend the Pafmecsa Conference in Addis ababa in February 1962, to visit the independent African States, and to ask them to give military training to our people, and to raise funds for the struggle.

I had lived underground for almost 10 months, and it was exciting indeed to look forward to free and unfettered movement in day time, without fear of arrest.

I looked forward to visiting new Countries and meeting famous freedom fighters, who were dominating the liberation movement in various parts of the Continent.

Above all, I looked forward to meeting Comrade Zambo and ~~other~~ his capable Team which was mobilising international support for our struggle. They had done impressive spade work and helped to put our struggle on the map. Emergence of MK had boosted their efforts. But socio-economic problems were frightening. /0
