

It means to show that a certain rule/theorem would apply under individual conditions which are based on previous knowledge that they have learnt.